

Psycho-astrological Portrait

The psycho-astrological portrait concerns the subject born on January 28 1955 at 22h00, Paris (75)

It has been based on the positions of the Sun, the Moon, Mercury and Venus, as shown on the following pages.

It also takes into account the Ascendant (rising sign), meaning the zodiacal position of the east horizon of the natal chart, at the time of birth.

This interpretation conforms with the latest developments in modern astrology, enriched by insights of modern psychology for the description of personality and psychoanalysis for the light of the subconscious. First of all come the basic elements of your personality and the backdrop of your existence as defined by the positions of the sun and the Ascendant

The Sun and the Ascendant

Taking into consideration the position of the Sun and the Ascendant what follows represents the basic elements of your personality and the character traits which form the background of your existence.

Subject's sign of birth = Aquarius
Subject's Ascendant = Virgo

Deep within, you want to run whenever uncomfortable material realities come too close. At times, you think it would be lovely to remain a spectator of this life, untouched by squalor, misery and injustice. This desire for security, even in a vacuum, is a definite facet of your character.

Along with this, however, the time of your birth has provided you with keen observation, and an ability to analyze details which nails down whatever is 'otherworldly' in your nature. There is always a possibility that you may neglect crass-realities in favour of a fling at high jinks, adventure and pure independence. A desire for change, and the unique individuality which makes you want to get off the beaten path, to upset the apple-cart and outlaw prejudices are also part of your very interesting character.

Perhaps it's just as well that your behaviour is more docile and conforming than your desires. Your sense of thrift, both physical and moral, gives you wisdom. You need order and discipline to reassure that timid side of you which fears the unknown - though still yearning for the latter in your heart of hearts. The inherent reflection and critical sense of a Virgo is ever present, and this spares the Aquarius side of you from the disillusion that is all too common in the workaday world. Even more fortunate is that it warns you of it in advance.

Your assets :

- Your basic curiosity, which makes you seek absolutes and grandeur.
- Even though you see far, you still don't miss the indispensable immediate details. In this case, your keen sense of observation helps your own imagination.
- The ability to forget yourself.
- There is no malice in you, nor is there envy or bitterness.

Your weaknesses :

- Your principal weakness is your limited sensitivity.
- You certainly have a social and humanitarian conscience, which however, is more intellectual than heartfelt.
- You flee passion to avoid being upset or perhaps from fear of being unable to respond sufficiently.

Seeking balance :

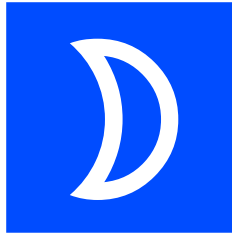

You will be able to fulfil yourself through friendship. Understanding and wise, you will frequently be called upon for advice and comfort. Being a mainstay, a rock for others to lean on is quite a satisfactory role in life. Even better, research, and particularly scientific research, could provide you with rare joy and happiness.

Health :

Beware of all signs of nervous tension, and nip them in the bud so that they don't bring on physical illness.

Your destiny =

Your kind of person is appreciated socially. You don't have a robust constitution, however, and must compensate for your lack of vital energy with intellectual endurance. Your luck resides in this, and it could bring you unhopd for success. Any solid achievement should be based on family life, and it could be that your creative instinct and your supreme ambition could lead you to rekindle a dying flame.

Taking this into consideration, combined with that of the Ascendant and the position of the Moon, the satellite closest to earth is a determining factor on the influence of our instincts and our hidden tendencies. It reigns over our dreams and meditations, our intuition and the manifestations of our unconscious.

The measured, cautious and calculating aspects of your personality are in striking contrast to your deeper perceptions of the world which incline you to look at your surroundings and other people as a sort of aggression or challenge, an excuse to retaliate violently and incisively. During periods of varying length, you may tend to lose control over your emotions and seem intolerant and excessive while normally you use every artifice to avoid any appearance of passionate commitment.

Because of the astrological situation in question, you may have a problem in lucidly and courageously recognizing these spells of illogic and violence rather than simply justifying them rationally in order to maintain some comfortable semblance of internal unity. Repressing your impulses threatens to make you destructive in your judgements at times, as if you were transforming into a sort of objective criticism an inherent propensity to seek confrontations whose only possible outcome would be the rapid elimination of the person who contradicted you. There is also a chance you may people your dreams with unexpressed terrors, images charged with anxiety and a feeling that life is worthless.

Your problems result from a difficulty in reconciling the conservative and rational tendencies of your acquired personality with the undisciplined, adventuresome and aggressive tendencies of your basic temperament.

Now it's Venus' turn, the evening star. It rules over the world of emotion and sentiment, our aesthetic sense, deep friendship and our ability to love.

The astrological configurations dealing with your emotional life show that your natural tendency to be warm and demonstrative may be frustrated by your cold rationality which is as attached to moral rigor and lucidity as your heart is to enthusiasm and exalted passion.

This duality in your nature may become manifest in alternating periods of relaxation and austerity during which you will tend to deny yourself and even regret your independence.

There is also a possibility that the ardour you expend in conquering and subsequently maintaining your love at a peak of passion is followed by periods during which you devote equal energy to becoming self-sufficient, fortifying your defences and seeking escape in study, work or abstract thought.

You may be inclined to expect too much of those you love and seek a partner of superior virtues who can stimulate your ambitions, but you are in any case too critical to remain long the captive of a figment of your imagination.

Nevertheless, the normal growth process may bring you to choose the realistic solutions which will assure you of a suitable emotional life from which you will have eliminated fearless involvements in favour of an understanding protected by a community of ideas and above all by the common interests which convert a couple into a close-knit and socially effective team.

Considering Sun signs alone, your chances of a successful relationship with others are generally as follows :

Virgo, Sagittarius :

Affinities which could turn into passionate attraction, but a relationship could be complex and accentuate the inner contradictions of both parties.

Gemini, Pisces :

Complementary relationships, more suitable for work and professional commitments than any passionate intimacy.

Aries, Libra :

Common interests and friendship with your heart more or less involved. But your minds are too far apart.

Taurus, Scorpio :

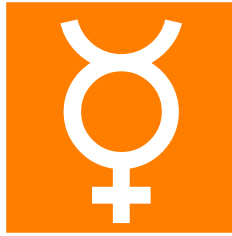

A relationship with Taurus could be stable and rewarding after a difficult period. Greater moral complicity than emotional harmony with Scorpio.

Cancer, Capricorn :

Moral and intellectual understanding. Affinities virtually nil on all other level.

Leo, Aquarius :

Many emotional points in common, but little likelihood that your characters will ever coincide.

Mercury, the planet which turns about the Sun at the greatest speed dominates our intellectual activities. It rules over the world of reason and intelligence.

From what we can see from reading your astrological chart, yours is a mind which is inventive, open to new ideas and which is deeply concerned with all contemporary problems. A keen observer and intuitive, your mind is enriched by contacts with others. You can learn as much from conversing with others as from your own personal experience.

Nevertheless, you are even more sensitive to the hidden and obscure side of things than to the all too obvious evidence of reality. However, your intense wish to remain logical makes you look askance at the fantasies of your imagination. To add a last note to this brief portrait, we might also add that there is a conflict between your temperament which is basically reserved and somewhat anxious, and your mental outlook which tends to be daring and even adventuresome.

Personalities of this type are generally original because of a knack they have in believing the impossible which stems from the richness of their irrepressible imagination. Nevertheless, their inherent exactitude more often than not and fortunately seeks sound bases for their beliefs and opinions. If you are unable to achieve such a balance, however, you may experience some difficult periods during which you will abruptly alternate from exuberant enthusiasm to deep depression. At times the world will appear wonderful and newly created, at others you will feel only bitterness and deep disappointment. Remember that the disillusion lies but within yourself. Furthermore, if your imagination gets the upper hand on your sense of logic and rationality, there is a risk you could simply engage in futile mental gymnastics and erect systems with no common bond to reality. This in itself would be your way of escaping your inner contradictions.

You could on the other hand find balance in activities requiring both your talents for analysis and critical sense and your imagination. The latter in fact should be cultivated, for you are remarkably intuitive and can anticipate the future and see all the good and bad it may contain.
