

Theme Comparison

The comparison of birth charts which follows concerns the subject born on January 28 1955 at 22h00, Paris (75)

and the partner born on November 12 1957 at 23h55, Hauts de Seine (92)

This astrological report concerns the interplay of tendencies which may arise between a man and woman who are involved in a love situation. This could mean that there's already an established alliance, that it's on the point of becoming a reality, or is simply a twinkle in one or both of their eyes--in other words, love exists, either as a fact or merely as fiction.

Naturally enough, we cannot accept responsibility for whatever use may be made of this report out of context.

Its interpretation, starting from the assumption that love already exists between the two people concerned, shows the possibilities implicit in these tendencies. We consider the "couple" that could result, if the experiment is brought to its natural conclusion--without assuming, however, that this would be the case. "What is", "what will be" and "what could be" all have equal value here.

So this report is not an "oracle" but a survey. It does not predict but rather informs.

In probing the depths of the innermost self, it seeks to reveal the dark forces which tend to determine our amorous destinies, forces that are subconscious and independent of our wills.

An awareness of such forces enables us to better control them. By seeing the checkerboard of love more clearly, we are better prepared to make our moves, better able to realise love's grandeur and power. Such are the psychological values you should consider in this report.

Our readers will therefore have to look at the information provided in proper perspective, judge these with their intelligence and not necessarily become discouraged by any negative factors that may appear. We want this report to be helpful and useful, and we hope our readers will approach it in this spirit.

Physical attraction

In the first part of this report, we deal with love from the standpoint of Eros - that is to say, from its physical aspects of bodily desire and fulfilment. The aim of this note is to reveal the affinities that may exist between these two people in the realm of sensual compatibility, passion and instinctive sexual drives.

The Venus of the person concerned, which was at the zenith at midnight on her birthday, is superimposed on the Mars of her partner, which was in the same position on his birthday.

Here we have an astral situation representing the love affair between Mars and Venus--or if you prefer, Ares and Ares as the Greeks called them. Your own feelings are very much like those of Venus, for you're impelled irresistibly in the direction of a male who makes you feel all-woman and glad of it. There's no doubt whatsoever about the nature of this drive--it's sensual, emotional and purely physical. Don't knock it though--it's a good beginning. And with the willingness to make an effort on both sides, you can have the love that everybody yearns for. The rewards are worth the effort.

Psychic harmony

The following note considers love from the standpoint of the psyche, that is to say the psychological aspects governing the attraction and union of souls. This will inform you on the quality of the relationships which can exist between a woman's spiritual femininity and the man's spiritual masculinity. This reflects the mutual exchange at the very deepest level of your feelings, the basic habitat of love.

The relationship of your Sun-Moon combination with that of the girl you are interested in does not reveal any striking trends.

From this we could deduce that neutrality is the keyword as far as the spiritual aspects of love are concerned, there seems to be neither any special incompatibility nor any particular attraction between your partner's imagined ideal and your own. That is what this astral situation says.

Nevertheless, both of your innermost feelings may be committed to a psychic and emotional bond, if you do feel affection for one another (see what follows), and in this case such neutrality could not be considered a problem of any kind. If this is not true, if such compensation does not exist, the forces of your heart appear to be quite a weak point in this couple.

Emotional bonds

The following note with its series of varying points is aimed at drawing up an inventory of the emotional bonds that may exist between the two people concerned. This is the world of the heart, in which both the body and the soul can play a part. All amorous feelings are included with their highs and lows, desperation and passions. In this case the tendency is good and should serve as an encouragement to this bond.

The harmonic relationship between your own Venus and your partner's Ascendant is an encouraging note indeed. Purely and simply, it means that you are physically attracted to one another. Truly, you exude warmth and well-being and there's a natural tendency for two such optimistic, outgoing people to appreciate one another's fine points. To you both, love is an essential life force, a current on which you float happily without dreaming of resisting. Your relationship could easily prove lasting and indeed will, if other factors are equally favourable.

Both of you two were born under a trine of Venus and Pluto.

This configuration indicates that you share a common emotional outlook. You urgently wish to express your deepest feelings and instincts. You tend toward exaltation and self-dramatisation, and at times you tend to see yourself as a hapless victim being driven by forces larger than life. The relationship between the two of you may be shadowy and vague, with each of you being the fascinated and the fascinator by turns. Not that this is a detriment to your happiness, for you could enjoy much happiness and emotional satisfaction in this bond which is in all likelihood long-lasting as well.

Negative aspects

In the following note or series of notes, we have tries to point out the negative aspects which might eventually affect you as a couple. We mean incompatibilities of taste, behaviour and outlook which might make the dialogue between you difficult if not impossible. Some differences don't matter, but some are irreconcilable.

Your Sun is in dissonance with your partner's Mars.

This astral situation signifies a love-hate relationship. This is the sort of opposition that can appear when your partner fails to meet your expectations, regardless of whether or not you have expected too much. (sometimes you have a rather naive difficulty in realising the difference between what you want and what is likely to happen, given the existing factors). Be that as it may, unless you take care there will be more or less violent clashes of wills in the offing, a battle in which each of you tries to exercise authority and domination. Too much of this, and love could turn to loathing. But it is perfectly possible, through trust and loving tolerance, to avert any power struggle. Sometimes it isn't smart to win--for you can win a battle and lose a war.

Your Saturn meets with your partner's Sun in the zodiac.

With such a conjunction, we can hardly say that your relationship is very gay. It's true that your partner may bring out in you all that is most serious, solid and deep. In the presence of this person you may feel stirrings of conscience, so that you feel a definite moral bond. Yet the trouble is that at the first sign of discord between you, this same influence may show an exceedingly negative side, namely that each of you would feel terribly self-conscious and awkward, unable to think, feel or act naturally. In the other's presence you would feel stifled in mind and spirit. Love would become something like a hair shirt that you vaguely felt must be good for you because it was so uncomfortable.

Your Venus meets with your partner's Saturn in the zodiac.

This is an astral mismatch that could throw sand into the gears of your mutual understanding. First of all, alone might say that Saturn's coolness will tend to stifle your venusian warmth and sensitivity. This may show itself in a slight difficulty in getting your ideas across, their getting a poor reception or just plain non-comprehension. But, on the other hand, you may be indulging in a form of behaviour that your opposite number considers erratic or bizarre at the very least. If one or the other of you can be yielding and willing to compromise, a relationship may be created which is calm, sound and stable.

Personality compatibilities

This new series of notes includes information dealing with the agreement and understanding which can help your relationship progress harmoniously. Here we're concerned less with two lovers than with two human beings, each of which has his or her own personality, his/her own emotional drives and his/her own character, his/her own emotional drives and his/her own ability to adjust and share every sort of interest - intellectual, professional, financial and familial.

A Moon-Mercury trine creates vibrations around a common centre of awareness and intellectual activity, and both of your hearts--as well as your brains--can participate in this community of spirit. Consequently you naturally appreciate each other's assets and find it easy to adapt to one another. You share a wealth of interests and hobbies, from Mozart to movies.

Your Jupiter meets with your partner's Moon.

This in itself is an indication that yours is a happy relationship.

It will prove beneficial to you in that you'll be provided the opportunity to reveal all your finest qualities as a human being--your sheer goodness, kindness and largeness of spirit. You'll enrich your partner's life and give her that lovely feeling of being loved and appreciated. In helping another person toward self-fulfilment one often finds one's self fulfilled, for true happiness lies in self-forgetfulness. Or, as the late John Barrymore said, happiness sneaks through a door you'd forgotten you left open.

The Jupiter-Sun trine we see here emanates a certain power which contributes much to the fulfilment of your personalities, with the happy result that the talents and potential of each may be increased.

Together you stand a very good chance of succeeding. With an eye turned toward firm goals, you may see your relationship strengthened through the fulfilment of your ambitions. You both recognise time as the precious commodity that it is, and have resolved to spend it wisely. In each other you have found an excellent help-mate.

Conclusion

In the last stage of this analysis, it seems appropriate to compare the various factors we have encountered during the course of this study. Each note along the way has been but a small part of the truth. Their true value can only be seen if they are mixed together in a delicate and complex synthesis. Only from these successive comparisons and the relationships between them can we draw a conclusion. In any case, the conclusion we have attempted here is merely an approximation of the entire truth of the situation and should be judged accordingly.

Although your chart shows many contradictions, you do in fact have many fortunate things in common.

First of all comes mutual physical attraction which indicates that you probably have sexual compatibility. In addition, your psychic similarity reveals that you share the same spiritual and moral outlook. And your characters blend beautifully as you agree on basic issues and principles.

The few dissonant elements facing you all stem from an imbalance of emotions. This lack of harmony could lead to possible discord and needless quarrels. But despite this, it looks as though the positive factors outweigh the negative in your case. Naturally, the ultimate outcome of your relationship will depend on what you each put into it, but the general outlook is bright.
